All who exalt themselves shall be humbled and all who humble themselves shall be exalted

Dear parishioners.

In this weekend's Gospel, Jesus teaches us two essential virtues for the Christian life: humility and generosity. He teaches us not to seek first place, but to choose simplicity, and not to invite only those who can repay us, but to open our hearts to those in need. These words challenge not only us, but also our parish community, which is called to be a living sign of the heart of Christ. How can a parish be more humble? A humble parish is, above all, a community that values service above recognition. In the parish, ministries are not limited to titles or privileges, but to serving God's people with love and sacrifice. Leaders and volunteers learn to imitate Christ, who came not to be served, but to serve, demonstrating that true greatness is measured in service. A humble parish also listens before speaking. This means creating spaces for dialogue, paying attention to the voices of the young, the elderly, the wounded, and even those who feel distant from the Church. By listening, the parish recognizes the dignity of each person and builds communion. Finally, a humble parish welcomes without judgment. Each person who walks through the church doors should feel welcomed with open arms, regardless of appearance, social status, or past mistakes. Just as Jesus sat with sinners and outcasts, so too should the parish be a home where no one feels excluded. How can a parish be more generous? A generous parish is one that opens its doors to those in need. It doesn't limit itself to liturgical celebrations, but extends its mission to works of mercy, reaching out to the poor, the sick, the migrants, and the lonely, treating them not as visitors but as members of God's family. A generous parish expresses itself when it shares time, talent, and wealth. This means that priests, leaders, and parishioners freely dedicate their gifts, skills, and resources for the good of all, understanding that everything we have is a blessing entrusted to us by God. Finally, a generous parish practices hidden charity. Rather than seeking applause or recognition, the parish quietly supports those in need, whether through financial aid, visits to the sick, or prayers for those who suffer, trusting in Jesus' words that the Father, who sees what is done in secret, will reward abundantly. When a parish lives humility and generosity, it becomes a sign of the Kingdom of God, already experiencing the banquet promised by Jesus. The true reward comes not from human applause, but from God himself, who exalts the humble and fills with joy those who give from the heart. God bless you.

Readings at Mass

22nd Sunday in Ordinary Time
31st August 2025

First Reading      Ecclesiasticus 3:17-20, 28-29

My son, be gentle in carrying out your business, and you will be better loved than a lavish giver. The greater you are, the more you should behave humbly, and then you will find favour with the Lord; for great though the power of the Lord is, he accepts the homage of the humble. There is no cure for the proud man's malady, since an evil growth has taken root in him. The heart of a sensible man will reflect on parables, an attentive ear is the sage's dream.

Responsorial Psalm      Psalm 67(68):4-7, 10-11

R/ God, in your goodness, you have made a home for the poor.

The just shall rejoice at the presence of God, they shall exult and dance for joy.
O sing to the Lord, make music to his name;
rejoice in the Lord, exult at his presence. R/

Father of the orphan, defender of the widow,
such is God in his holy place.
God gives the lonely a home to live in;
he leads the prisoners forth into freedom: R/

Second Reading      Hebrews 12:18-19, 22-24

What you have come to is nothing known to the senses: not a blazing fire, or a gloom turning to total darkness, or a storm; or trumpeting thunder or the great voice speaking which made everyone that heard it beg that no more should be said to them. But what you have come to is Mount Zion and the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem where the millions of angels have gathered for the festival, with the whole Church in which everyone is a 'first-born son' and a citizen of heaven. You have come to God himself, the supreme Judge, and been placed with spirits of the saints who have been made perfect; and to Jesus, the mediator who brings a new covenant.

Gospel Acclamation      Matt 11:29

Alleluia, alleluia!
Take my yoke upon you;
learn from me, for I am gentle and lowly in heart.
Alleluia!

Gospel

Luke 14:1, 7-14

On a sabbath day Jesus had gone for a meal to the house of one of the leading Pharisees; and they watched him closely. He then told the guests a parable, because he had noticed how they picked the places of honour. He said this, 'When someone invites you to a wedding feast, do not take your seat in the place of honour. A more distinguished person than you may have been invited, and the person who invited you both may come and say, "Give up your place to this man." And then, to your embarrassment, you would have to go and take the lowest place. No; when you are a guest, make your way to the lowest place and sit there, so that, when your host comes, he may say, "My friend, move up higher." In that way, everyone with you at the table will see you honoured. For everyone who exalts himself will be humbled, and the man who humbles himself will be exalted.'

Then he said to his host, 'When you give a lunch or a dinner, do not ask your friends, brothers, relations or rich neighbours, for fear they repay your courtesy by inviting you in return. No; when you have a party, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, the blind; that they cannot pay you back means that you are fortunate, because repayment will be made to you when the virtuous rise again.'

Next Sunday Readings:

Wis 9:13-18, Ps 89(90):3-6, 12-14, 17
Phlm 9-10, 12-17, Lk 14:25-33
